

CHANCELLOR'S Notes

November 2, 2007

LSUHSC faculty recognized

A number of our faculty have been recognized nationally recently.

Dr. Terry Fontham, Dean of Public Health, has been elected President-elect of the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Demetrius Porche, Dean of Nursing, has been elected to a second consecutive term as President of the American Assembly for Men in Nursing.

Dr. Edward Helm, Medical School Associate Dean, will be presented the AAMC Group on Student Affairs-Minority Affairs Section Service Award on Monday.

Dr. Fred Lopez, Medical School Assistant Dean, is a nominee for the 2007 AAMC Humanism in Medicine Award.

Successful events raised team-building and funds

About 2,400 faculty, staff, students, and families had a great time at the LSUHSC Fall Fest.

Have you ever tasted a better burger? People boogied with the Boogie Men. The clowns' balloon creations delighted the little ones. Tigers and LSU art were the order of the day for the airbrush tattoo artist.

Irma Thomas rocked the house at the Medical Alumni Association Purple, Blues and Gold Gala the following night.

About 700 people enjoyed dinner,

I'd like to thank you all for coming; it was great to see you and your loved ones!

We are especially grateful to our key sponsors--Campus Federal Credit Union and the LSU Medical Alumni Association whose support made such a great event possible.

dancing, and lively bidding at the silent and live auctions. People had a grand time and it was all for a great cause. Proceeds benefit the Center for Advanced Practice.

Allied Health's OTs renovate N.O. home with This Old House

34 faculty and graduate Occupational Therapy students helped to renovate two Broadmoor homes this week with Rebuilding Together. The crew from PBS's This Old House helped out and also taped an episode which will air in February. The OT team has served as consultants on Universal Design on a number of N. O. homes.
