

CHANCELLOR'S Notes

October 30, 2009

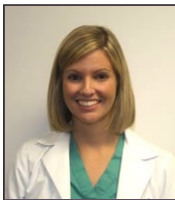

LSUHSC faculty among Great 100 Nurses

Six members of the faculty of our School of Nursing have been honored by the Great 100 Nurses of Louisiana.

Amber Lambert, RN

They are Melissa Hudson, RN, BSN; Khaleelah Hasan, MN, RN; Amber Lambert, RN, BSN; Jennifer Manning, RN, CNS; Todd Tartavouille, RN, MN; and O. Danny Lee, PhD.

Melissa Hudson, RN

Jennifer Manning, RN

The Great 100 Nurses of Louisiana was founded in 1986 as a way to recognize outstanding nurses and their accomplishments. The honorees are selected by their peers and patients, based on their humanity, and their contribution to the community and nursing.

Khaleelah Hasan, MN, RN

Danny Lee, PhD

Todd Tartavouille, RN

Disparities symposium features 16th Surgeon General

The School of Medicine hosted a Health Care Disparities Symposium this week to address one of the most critical issues we face today—removing the barriers to quality, culturally-sensitive care.

Drs. Jack, Opelka, Satcher, Nelson, and Thomas

Dr. David Satcher, the 16th Surgeon General of the United States, was the keynote speaker. His excellent and substantive address on health care reform, from the public health point of view, followed thought-provoking presentations by our own Drs. Dwayne Thomas and Frank Opelka, as well as Dr. Leonard Jack, from Xavier.

The symposium drew a standing room only crowd. We look forward to Dr. Satcher's return as we have already invited him to come back.

Next generation visits labs

Students from the Patrick Taylor Science & Technology Academy participated in a genetics workshop on our campus last week. They attended lectures and conducted experiments on forensic and chromosome analysis as part of a grant from the Taylor Foundation.

Coming Up

4th Annual
Purple & Gold Gala
SPORTS NIGHT

November 7, 2009
New Orleans Hilton

Featuring
The Bucktown AllStars
with Cocktail Buffet,
Live Auction and Silent Auction

to benefit the
Russell C. Klein, MD ('93)
Center for Advanced Practice

Presented by the LSU Medical Alumni Association