

CHANCELLOR'S Notes

July 2, 2010

Chancellor Larry Hollier, MD

Name your LSU EHR Project

As the LSU Health System embarks on the major organizational undertaking of implementing a single, standardized Electronic Health Record (EHR) system at all 10 LSU hospitals, it seems fitting to find a unique, fun and/or functional name to build ownership and enthusiasm in this effort and to create a "personality" for the system. As you consider a project name, remember that a primary goal of the LSU EHR project is to improve LSU's ability to fulfill our core mission of exemplary healthcare, education and research, specifically seeking to optimize care quality, patient safety and cost efficiency. Please go to <http://lsuhealthsystem.org/EHR/NamingContest/> by July 9th and submit your name entry. The winner will be selected by July 23rd.

There will be a $100 prize for the winning entry!

A website has also been created for the project: <http://lsuhealthsystem.org/EHR/default.aspx>. The site is a work in progress, so please check back regularly for the latest news.

Thank you for your help with this great new resource. ■

LSUHSC's Bajoie honored for lifetime achievement

Diana Bajoie, Director of Community Relations, was given a Lifetime Achievement Award by the Urban League of Greater New Orleans at its annual fundraising gala on Saturday.

Diana was celebrated as an outstanding public servant, who as a former senator, led the way to create school-based health clinics, form the Minority Health Care Commission and increase health care coverage for citizens with mental health disorders. Her efforts also led to creation of the

Louisiana State Museum on Civil Rights and the expansion and renaming of the New Orleans Convention Center in honor of the city's first African-American mayor, Ernest N. Morial.

President and CEO Nolan V. Rollins said "We are extremely delighted to acknowledge the many contributions Diana Bajoie has made to the community and the opportunities her work has provided so many. Her life demonstrates how one caring person can affect change that makes a difference." ■

LSUHSC's Miller named Best OB for High Risk Pregnancies

Dr. Joseph Miller, Chief of Maternal Fetal Medicine, has been selected as NOLA's Best OB for High Risk Pregnancies by nola baby & family magazine.

The magazine conducted its third annual readers' survey through its print magazine and e-newsletter this spring. Results from the survey will appear in the July/August issue of nola baby & family.

Publisher Ann Herren says choosing the right doctor is a daunting task. Beyond referrals, the magazine feels that readers' experiences are a great asset to help others in the decision-making process.

nola baby & family magazine is the only New Orleans parenting publication. ■
